AN IDEA OF SILVER.
Our neighbor, the Register, in its issue of yesterday discussing the Democratic policy at Washington, said:
"To meet and defeat the raid that is to be made upon the silver currency is also an important Democratic duty. Every department of commerce is interested in maintaining the present relation of our metallic currency. Tampering with the coinage would unsettle values, impede important industries and set us back in the market for many years. The annual production of silver in the United States is worth $30,000,000. There are but few other interests which exceed it in importance. There is none which has a more intimate relation to the general prosperity. There is none, indeed, to which the interests of the people are so universally committed."
We may consider first the question of fact; afterwards the matter of policy. The annual production of silver in the United States is not worth $30,000,000, unless the production of 1883, of which the returns are as yet not presented, shall have largely exceeded the estimate. The silver production has not been worth $30,000,000 in any two consecutive years. The production of 1878 and 1882 together was something in excess of that amount, but the product of no other two years will equal it. Silver production in ten years, from 1873 to 1883, has been from $35,000,000 to $45,000,000 a year, and is not a steadily increasing production. The yield in 1880 was less than that of either of the three preceding years.
There are many other interests which exceed this in importance. The value of the silver product of this country since mining the precious metals began here, and including the silver contained in the gold ore, covering a period of thirty-five years, is less, by $150,000,000, than the money value of the corn crop for the bad crop year of 1881. Barley, which stands fourth in the cereals, and buckwheat, which is lowest, together about balance the average silver production for ten years. This country never saw so bad a year for potatoes as 1881. The yield fell off 70,000,000 bushels from that of the previous year, yet the crop sold for nearly a round $100,000,000—more than double the value of the silver product of that year. The hay crop of 1881 was worth nearly ten times the silver of that year. In any year the products of the farm, exclusive of cotton, sugar, wool or live stock, will largely exceed in value all the gold and silver this country produces in the same time. Silver is in market value among the least important of our productions; and gold is like it.
What is meant by "the raid which is to be made upon silver currency?" Public sentiment demands that the misleading "trade dollar" shall be swept away; but that token is not currency. Public opinion is against the standard silver dollar, as witness the increasing millions stored in the Treasury at increasing expense. Up to November 1, 1883, there had been coined under the act of 1878, $156,520,949, at which date $116,386,000 were in the Treasury because the people did not want them. In the year $28,501,000 had been coined, but the amount in circulation in the same time had increased only $4,136,321. The people have not the slightest use of standard silver dollars to keep in circulation so much as one of them for each one of the population. This is sufficient, but not the only, evidence of the great unpopularity of that coin.

Protests are heard on every hand against a policy which continues to pay out money for carrying and storing what the people do not want and will not take. But the law is mandatory, and while it stands the folly of one year is repeated in the next. The question involves also a matter of international policy, to which of course our neighbor's attention need not be called. If to defeat the public demand for an abandonment of a course which in his own business he "an important Democratic duty," the country has greater need than ever to be saved from the Democratic party. We had hoped that this matter of the silver dollar might by common consent be classed among the questions not political.

PERSONAL.
Matthew Arnold will sail for Europe on February 27.
Miss Mary Anderson expects to return to America late in the summer. Her season begins late in September.
Mrs. J. J. Astor has sent 1,000 homesteads to the South and West in the last few years at the rate of nearly $16,000.
Charlotte, the widow of Maximilian, is forty-three, but looks much older, being gray and wrinkled. Her health has improved.
El Mahdi is tall, and of a coppery red in color. He is forty years old. His battle cry is no protection for Christians, and no government taxes.
Justice Field is the only member of the Supreme Court who lives on Capitol Hill, Washington. He has a very handsome residence on Lanier place, facing the Capitol.

F. W. Thurber, who retires from business in New York, is estimated to be worth $2,000,000. He began with a few dollars and gradually built up a colossal grocery concern. His age is fifty-four.
Ex-Judge Christianity has published three long columns in a Michigan paper to defend himself against the charges which have been reiterated by some of the public prints since the recent death of his divorced wife.
Somebody in Washington told General Sherman that a great many people would like to see him President, and the General, who is a man of few words, said: "If you want a man cutting your fence and shoot him—well, I will give no pledges as to what I would do with you."

BREAKFAST BUDGET.
The State tax of Florida this year is but 3 mills.
Strawberries are sold in New York city at 15 cents each.
In Birmingham, Conn., factory employees cut 2,000 corns per day.

FAIR NOTES.
From forty to fifty degrees is the temperature for a week in winter.
A truck farmer near Aridondo, Fla., has contracted for the sale of his strawberry crop at $3 per quart.
It is best to defer purchasing pigs till spring, as they make but little growth when separated from the sows at this season.
From four acres of ground a market gardener at Morris, Ill., during the past season, made a profit of $1,300, not including the vegetables for his family.
Just and smart feed differently on the wheat plant. Rust is usually on the stalk and feeds on the pabulum prepared for the seed, but sows feed on the seed itself.
English beef, which is largely made by feeding root, is said not to be as nutritious as American beef, which is made from corn and grass; that the English beef is regarded as the best flavored.
D. A. Jones, of Beeton, Ont., had 50,000 pounds of honey on exhibition at the September meeting of the North American Beekeepers' Association, at Toronto. He is the largest apiculturist in the country.
Says the Iowa Register: One hundred bushels of corn will shrink to ninety in the crib, and to an extent more than that, depending upon the openness of the crib and the honesty of the neighbors.
The woodpecker, which apparently destroys the trees by their constant drilling, is never gone for the insects, and often saves trees that would be destroyed by their aid. There is no bird more valuable to an orchard than the woodpecker, and the surest sign of insect depredations under the bark is the visit of the woodpecker to the tree. He never attacks the trees unless in search of food.
Prof. J. A. Lintner says that mites are most of our insect enemies and insignificant in size to other naturalists, yet, in combination, they have devastated countries and have brought famine and pestilence in their train. If unrestrained power should be given them, all counter checks removed, and they were left free to attack us, in our persons, food, clothing, houses, and domestic animals, the consequences would be fearful, exposure and want would in the end remove the human race from the face of the earth.

FARM NOTES.
The Indians, knowing the value of Wild Cherry as a food for domestic and wild animals, used to prepare it in their rude way, and in winter kept it constantly on hand. The careful and secret method of preparing Dr. Williams' Wild Cherry Syrup is a very pleasant to take.
An exchange says that horses have made more fast runs, and women, too, than is for the good of society.
Most Wonderful.
Very seldom do we read of an actual case of recovery, where hope has been lost, to equal that which was on Monday investigated by a Dispatch reporter who had heard, in various quarters, persons talking to their friends of a cure, seemingly little short of miraculous, that had been performed. Wm. Lincoln Curtis is the name of the young man in question. He is now employed at H. K. Porter & Co.'s Leadenhall Works, Pittsburgh. His disease was Chronic Rheumatism. The enormous swelling and pain in joints of his arm soon produced paralysis of his left arm. He gradually grew worse, his ankles and knees were soon even worse than his arms, his cheek bones began to collapse, spreading his face out of all resemblance to his former self. The physicians pronounced him hopeless. FEVERA cured him. Page 36 Dr. Hartman's "Hills of Life."

DEATH.
BARON ON Thursday, January 17, 1884, at 12 o'clock, BENJAMIN BARON, in the 64th year of his age. Funeral from his late residence, No. 1113 Chapel street, on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends of the family are invited.
HERBERT ON Thursday, January 17, 1884, at 7 o'clock A. M., EDWARD HERBERT, aged 36 years. Funeral from his late residence, Eastville, Ohio, Saturday at 2 o'clock. Burial at Bridgeport Cemetery. Friends of the family are invited.

THE EYEGLASSES OF FLORIDA.
The high hopes that were entertained of the exploration into the Florida Everglades by the Times Democrat, of New Orleans, have been disappointed. It was believed that the interior portions of the supposed great swamp might be found to be elevated and reclaimable, and so of value for farming purposes. It was also hoped that it would be found practicable to build a telegraph line from the cable on the Jupiter Inlet on the eastern coast, where all vessels pass from the West Indies and the Gulf, and where their arrival could be telegraphed northward. The exploration, made with great labor in canoe over a distance of nearly 300 miles, shows that none of these expectations can be realized. The great swamp is a swamp and can not be made anything else. The lands, if they can be culled so, are worthless for any purpose of cultivation, and can not be even telegraphed. This will put at rest forever all the legends of generations past about luxuriant and fertile regions within the Everglades. They must be left to the Indians who live in the swamp, and who since the days of Osceola and the Seminoles.

OLD MASTER AND HIS LIVES.
The most thoroughly eloquent and effective speeches ever made in the legislature of Texas were pronounced by two negroes, both of whom told the story of negro devotion to "old master and mistress." When one of these natural orators, himself an old man, extended his black, horny hands and said: "There can be no great race enmity between us. This cannot come while my old master and mistress live. No, no, while their children and mine survive. They were kind and generous to me. I knew no want of to-day or care for the morrow when I was their property. They tell the tale. They tell how I toiled for them. And the story is not ended. They are old and helpless now, and live as once did, in a little cabin, and still I toil for them. I send them half of every dollar I draw from the State treasury, and when their daughter, a beautiful and good girl, whom I used to carry when she was a child in these strong arms, was married not long ago, I sent her a check for $1,000. Have I not this to ask you, gentlemen of the majority, to deal generously with my race?"
